

Graduate School of Economics, Kyoto University
Discussion Paper Writing Regulations

Graduate School of Economics FD Committee
Enacted on 16th April, 2015
Amended on 21st July, 2016

1. Subject discussion papers (DP) are, in principle, written to publish the work of the Kyoto University Graduate School of Economics. They are available on the Graduate School of Economics homepage.

2. The author
 - (1) Sole-authored papers
In principle, a DP may be authored by ① a faculty member, ② a specially appointed faculty member, ③ an honorary professor, ④ a fellow, ⑤ a visiting faculty member, ⑥ an invited researcher, or ⑦ a researcher.
Provided that, however, when the author is either ④ a fellow, ⑤ a visiting faculty member, ⑥ an invited scholar, or ⑦ a researcher, a member of this faculty who handles cooperative research shall conduct a peer review and submit a recommendation confirmation.

 - (2) Collaborative papers
A collaborative paper submitted by ① a faculty member, ② a specially appointed faculty member, or ③ an honorary professor is considered a DP. A collaborative paper application by ④ a fellow, ⑤ a visiting faculty member, ⑥ an invited researcher, or ⑦ a researcher is only considered a DP if ④, ⑤, ⑥, or ⑦ is the lead author, provided that, however, a member of this faculty who handles cooperative research shall conduct a peer review and submit a recommendation confirmation.

- Additional note 1)
⑦ A researcher indicates a junior researcher, an OD/PD part-time lecturer, a SGU post-doctorate researcher, or an outside research cooperator at the project center.

- Additional note 2)
DPs may only be authored during the respective tenure of above ① to ⑦.

- Additional note 3)
A graduate student may not author a DP individually. However, they may be a co-author with above ①, ②, or ③.

3. Language used
In principle, DP shall be written in English or Japanese. Other languages are possible if necessary.

4. Writing application
After entering the required items in Application for Discussion Paper Publication in Attachment 1 (MS Word), DP writing applications are filed through Graduate School of Economics faculty members. The faculty members are granted a number from the DP Series manager, who then receives the submission of the DP file.

5. Publication
 - (1) After receipt of the above numbered application, the applicant is issued registration numbers for both the English and Japanese versions of the DP.

- (2) Both an English and Japanese version of the cover are to be prepared using MS Word.
- (3) For publication, the author will prepare a PDF version and email it as an attachment to the DP Series manager. Papers are published on the Graduate School of Economics homepage.

6. Copyrights

The copyrights for works such as the papers published in the DP Series shall revert to the author, and the Graduate School of Economics shall retain an edit copyright. Also, the author shall be able to entrust exercise of the copyright to the Graduate School of Economics. Even such a case shall not interfere with the author exercising the rights.

7. Format

(1) Composition

The composition shall be as below.

①Cover

(page numbers are not assigned, use the prescribed format; attachment 2 for English, attachment 3 for Japanese)

② Page 1 title, subtitle, name of writer, affiliation and status of writer, keywords, summary (about 200 English words, no more than 1000 Japanese characters) writer contact information (email address, etc.)
