

京都大学
KYOTO UNIVERSITY

Programme in Economic & Business History

Kyoto-Glasgow

International Double Doctoral Degree

Nurturing World-Class Researchers

Acquire Two Doctoral Degrees in Four Years

On this programme participants can obtain two doctorates—one conferred by Kyoto University and one by the University of Glasgow—with a single doctoral dissertation and a single tuition fee.

Become a World-Class Researcher

This programme nurtures world-class researchers through research mobility and the supervision of experts at prestigious universities in Japan and the UK.

* In order to participate in the programme, candidates initially enrol in a doctoral course at the Graduate School of Economics, Kyoto University or College of Social Sciences, University of Glasgow, then transfer onto the double degree programme.

Enjoy Student Life in Kyoto and Glasgow

Study at institutions that pioneered academic research in economic and business history in Asia and Europe, and in two cities of great historical significance.

World-Class Universities

Located in Japan's ancient capital and at the heart of the vibrant Kansai region, Kyoto University boasts a strong tradition in teaching and research in economic and business history and has produced leading researchers in the field.

Founded in 1451, the University of Glasgow, alma mater of Adam Smith, is the birthplace of business history research in the UK and boasts the largest centre of economic and business history research in Europe.

For more details, please refer to the homepage of the Graduate School of Economics, Kyoto University

<https://www.econ.kyoto-u.ac.jp/about/grad/>

Kyoto University, Graduate School of Economics
University of Glasgow, College of Social Sciences