① Font Embedding

The applicant has to set-up the properties such that all the fonts are embedded. (Creation of PDF files without embedding all the fonts can cause for some letters to be dropped from the file.)

It is possible that the embedded text in the PDF file is not the same as what appears or becomes garbled. This may be detrimental to the author or to other users (e.g. when the doctoral dissertation is not appearing as it should be in the repository’s full-text search). Accordingly, the applicant has to confirm and be certain about font embedding. (It is possible to confirm the embedded text data by copying and pasting the text of the PDF file.)

② Security Set-up

The applicant should not encrypt, set-up password, nor restrict printing.

③ File Size

The file size of the Doctoral Dissertation can become too large if it has many pictures, figures or tables. When this happens, the applicant can deal with this by the “File size reduction” property in the PDF’s file set-up. If the file size still exceeds 100 MB, the student can make multiple files each with not more than 100 MB. The corresponding number in sequence has to be added in each of the file names.

In case the file size is not more than 100 MB, the applicant has to submit the document as one file unless there is a special reason not to do so.

3) The applicant has to submit the digital data. (In submitting the digital data, there is no need for confirmation by the academic supervisor [or thesis examining committee member]). Along with this, the applicant has to submit the document in printed medium (confirmed by the academic supervisor [or thesis examining committee member]).

4) File Name

The file name has to be in Japanese as follows.
